

TWELVE POLOMEN TURN OUT FOR PRACTICE

First Play of the Season Shows
That Hawaiian Stick Swingers
Are Preparing for the Future

The first gun of the polo season was fired yesterday morning, when twelve players turned out at Moanua field for a preliminary warm-up. There was but little play, only a couple of periods of three-side polo being played, but an unusual amount of enthusiasm was shown, and the talkiest which preceded the practice indicated that the successful invasion of California by the Hawaiian team last winter has given the game here a great impetus.

The real feature of yesterday's turn-out was staged at the stables and not on the field. Sixteen green ponies, purchased on the Coast by Peter Hannon, the veteran trainer and stable manager, whose good work did much last season for the success of the team, were up for division among the local players. This lot cost a tidy sum, and as only five of the sixteen are even broken to saddle, much less to the game, it will be seen that it is to the future and not to the present that the polo men are looking.

Captain Walter Dillingham retained six of these ponies, and the other ten were drawn for among some of the other players. Five of the lot will be kept up and carefully schooled, and the other eleven will be turned out to pasture for a full year, and will be worked with next season.

This is in preparation for another coast invasion in 1915, and the sporting spirit shown by some of the players, in refusing to sell schooled ponies in California, and then disposing of them to their club mates for a very much smaller figure, in order to take over and develop new material, and at the same time keep all the made ponies on Oahu, is the sort of spirit that will some day win the western championship for Hawaii.

Walter Dillingham himself has disposed of almost all his old ponies, and intends to play very little this season, and give a great deal of time to schooling ponies.

Yesterday there was a two-period knockabout between teams made up as follows:

Reds: Guy Macfarlane, B. R. Peyton, Walter Macfarlane.

Whites: F. M. Andrews, R. McCriston, R. W. Shingle.

The game ended with two goals for each side.

In addition there was a walk and trot game in which some of the new ponies were given a gentle schooling. Walter Dillingham, Harold Castle, Sam Baldwin, Arthur Rice, Peter Hannon, Fred Wickham and H. G. Smart took part in this play.

The field was very soggy, and even had the condition of the ponies permitted, extended galloping would have been out of the question.

SCHMIDT RANKED AS HIGH CLASS GOLFER

(By Latest Mail)

ST. ANDREW, Scotland.—Though defeated in the sixth round of the amateur golf championship by Harold H. Hilton, the famed English crack of the Royal Golf club, W. Heinrich Schmidt, the young player of Worcester, Mass., by his plucky fight, in the estimation of the British golfers, established his right to rank with "Chick" Evans and Fred Herreshoff as among the greatest young golfers America has produced.

For 18 holes Schmidt made the Englishman fight every inch of the way. He was out in 39, Hilton in 38, but it was only by running down a 25 foot putt for a three that Hilton finally won at the nineteenth hole.

If Schmidt had had half the luck that Walter J. Travis, who won the championship nine years ago, he would have stood at least four up on the Englishman. Time and again he slipped the hole with long putts.

The men were tied on the eighteenth and an extra hole had to be played. Hilton outdrove Schmidt off the tee, but the Massachusetts lad made up on his second. Hilton, however, holed a long putt, and won the hole in three against Schmidt's four.

A gallery of 2,000 followed the match, but the spectators did not disturb the American. He was as cool and as collected at all times as the most seasoned veteran. He took his defeat in a sportsmanlike fashion.

Reversing the process of keeping tropical plants in hot houses in temperate climates, a botanical garden at Calcutta utilizes a cold house for plants from cooler lands.

The area of the Belgian Congo is estimated at about 900,000 square miles, and has a population of not more than 9,000,000 natives and 4000 whites. Half of the latter are Belgians.

NOTICE.

The special meeting of members of the Healehi Yacht and Boat Club adjourned from May 29th will be held at the club house June 12th at 7:30 p. m. All members are asked to be present.

By order of the president.

BASEBALL ONE OF THE SQUAREST OF GAMES

Bushers May Fake Occasionally but Big Leaguers Are on the Level

Though the national game is generally regarded as being "on the level," there are a few fans who sometimes question the honesty of owners, managers, players, and umpires. With many close plays, which naturally cause excitement, the disappointed "fan" frequently finds it difficult to believe the umpire acted fairly or that one or more of the players did not shirk. "Billy" Evans, an American League umpire, knows a good deal about the game, and he assures us that it is as honest as anybody could reasonably expect it to be. He writes in Pearson's Magazine, in part as follows:

No baseball fan will ever forget the failure of Merkle to touch second in that memorable game with the Cubs. That misplay caused New York and Chicago to end the season tied for first place. This necessitated playing an extra game to decide who was the winner, the first time such a thing had happened in the history of major-league baseball.

New York fans had given up all hope because of the consistent winning of the Cubs, when Cincinnati came through with a victory over Chicago that enabled the Giants to tie the Cubs. Then with the Cincinnati club, and Orville Overall, now retired, but at that time with Chicago, are fast friends; "pals" in fact. These men figured prominently in this game, but friendship was entirely forgotten, which only serves as further evidence of the honesty of baseball.

Overall was pitching this very important game for the Cubs, and was having things very much his own way. Until the last half of the ninth inning it looked like a sure thing for Chicago, as a one-run lead looked as big as a mountain, considering how Overall was mowing down the Reds. The crisis came in the ninth, and it was up to Lobert to face his best friend, with everything, possibly even the pennant, depending on his efforts.

Friendship Forgotten.

Overall, always a great pitcher in a pinch, faced the situation with his usual confidence. He knew full well that Lobert was a dangerous batter, especially in a pinch. He put everything he had on the ball in an effort to outguess the batter, and finally succeeded in getting the count where it stood two balls and two strikes. Then Lobert, singled to center, scoring both runners. That hit would have beaten the Cubs out of the pennant had New York been able to take one of their two games with Philadelphia, which they failed to do.

Ordinarily nothing makes the ballplayer so happy and light-hearted as a base hit. But that drive had no such an effect on Lobert. The position he found himself in would be a trying one under any circumstances, and it was unusually trying in view of the friendship that existed between him and Overall. Instead of being delighted he was broken-hearted over winning the game. He wanted the Cubs to win because Overall was his "pal." He and Overall walked to the dressing room like a couple of mourners at a funeral, for it looked at that time as if the loss of that game meant the loss of the pennant.

"I'm awfully sorry, old boy," said Lobert, as he slumped Overall on the back. "I would have given my year's salary if I could have honestly helped that hit."

"Forgot it, Hans," replied Overall. "You're playing for Cincinnati, not Chicago, and it is all a part of the game. We will win out anyway." And no one on the Chicago team was half as happy as Lobert was over the victory of the Cubs in the final game. Also that hit by Lobert was a grand tribute to the honesty of the game.

A Square Game.

Baseball history is full of deeds like those of Moriarty, Killifer, Lelivelt, Egan, McAleer and Lobert. Perhaps in the career of every player there have been at least a dozen times in important contests when he has done exactly the opposite of what he would have liked to do. And each one of these men has acted properly, because he has acted honestly.

Just as long as the game is played, however, there will be a number of pessimistic individuals who will be able to pick flaws in what happens in the baseball world. Murder will out, and if anything is ever done in baseball the player with a grievance will be only too glad to tell the world. No such tale has ever been put on the grand old game, and as long as it is conducted on the present high scale its popularity will increase. The fact that the fans of the United States paid a half million dollars to see the 1912 world's series best tells the story of how the regard the pastime of all pastimes.

"Now, I don't expect to see you here again, Rufus." Rufus: Not see me here again, Judge? Why, yo'-all ain't a-goin' to resign yo' job is yo', Judge?

Giles: Say, you didn't get your hair cut at a barber-shop, did you? Miles: Of course not. A locksmith did the job—at cut rates. Giles: Huh! It looks more like the work of a hack-man!

YESTERDAY'S GAME

L. Company, 9; F. Company, 1

The deciding game in the Twenty-fifth Infantry inter-company series for the regimental baseball championship was played yesterday and resulted in an L. Company victory. This game was postponed several times because of the continued rains and target range duties and the delay weakened the F. Company team because of the departure for the states in the meantime of two of the strongest F. Company players, Jamison, one of the fastest outfielders of the regiment, and Rush, who played second base in style and who was something of a stickman. The substitutes for these men were both recruits and this line-up made the L. Company victory all the easier. That the final outcome would have been the same is generally conceded by the fans of the post, but several hundred of them crowded the stands to see the contest, anyway. The regimental championship has been fairly won by the L. Company team and they deserve the pennant for their fine fight throughout the series and have a record of but one defeat in the eleven games. That was in the game with A. Company, when that team got away with the game by the close score of 4 to 3.

Yesterday's game saw two strong pitchers of the Twenty-fifth against each other and while both pitched great ball the palm must go to WILHELM, the L. Company southpaw. Thirteen strikeouts, with four scattered hits, against the team he pitched against yesterday is some record for a pitcher.

In all the games at this post, including the games of the regimental team when he has officiated on the mound, he has not shown the smoke that he offered yesterday. Bender Murcheson pitching for F. Company, allowed, up to the seventh, but four hits, but two of them were for distance and costly, and in the last inning L. Company fell on him for three in a row and drove four runs across in the rubber. Slaughter's long triple to center in the opener, with two men on, would have been an easy out for the absent Jamison, and remembering his famous throws from deep center to the plate in the past it is doubtful if even the fleet Williamson, who scored from second, could have made the run. In the fifth, Slaughter drove another long fly that the recruit center fielder misjudged, and another L. Company man was scored. Here are four runs that Jamison could have saved for his team, but other than these the absence of these players could have done little to affect the final L. Company victory. Pierson made two costly errors on first, but partially redeemed himself by two pretty singles, and the recruit Thomas drove a pretty single over third in the second. The fielding star of the post of Turner another F. Company recruit who played second, of a hard drive from Slaughter's bat in the third. Monahan of the First Infantry umpired the game and his handling of this game of so much importance to both contenders and his good judgment on all plays was most commendable.

The question as to whether the Wailaie, Kaimuki and Palolo Improvement Club shall again become a branch of the Oahu Central Improvement Committee was again taken up by the former organization at a meeting in the Liliuokalani school Tuesday evening, at which time a committee was appointed to make a decision. The meeting was attended by a committee from the central committee consisting of Abe Lewis and C. W. Ashford, who placed before the Kaimuki organization the views of the central committee with regard to the dispute.

Enough material exists all around us to make a thousand cost jesters.

Smashes 100-yard Mark for Open Water Held by Himself and Equals Own American Record for the 50-yard Distance—Miss Ruth Stacker Another Record Smasher Who Should Be Sent to the Coast — Annual Championships
Unqualified Success

G. CUNHA.

The breaking of one, and possibly two world's amateur swimming records, and two Hawaiian records, marks June 11, 1913, as a day long to be remembered in the annals of Hawaiian sport. That it should have been on the birthday of Kamehameha the Great that Hawaii forged still further towards the forefront of world sport, is a point of sentiment not overlooked by Hawaiians and kamaainas.

In results, in attendance, and in general arrangements, the third annual A. A. U. swimming championships were par excellence, the only unfortunate incident being the misinformation given out as to the establishing of new world's records. Duke Kahanamoku bettered his own world's mark for the century swim in open water, and broke the Hawaiian and A. A. U. records for the 50-yard distance, and the Hawaiian record for the 440 and 220 yards, but his previous marks for the 50 and 220 yards were not world's records. Miss Ruth Stacker is said to have established the world's record for the 50 yards for ladies, and this is extremely probable, although the latest swimming records do not give the time for this event. It is said to have been made by Miss Fanny Durack, of Australia, in 31.25 sec., and if this is correct, Miss Stacker is entitled to the crown, for yesterday she swam the distance in 31 flat. She made a beautiful start, getting away with the crack of the gun, and finished in impressive style. Certainly her performance is an American record at the least.

George Cunha Stars

Next to the record performances of Duke and Miss Stacker, George Cunha and Frederick Wilhelm were the particular stars of the meet. The former, who sports the blue and white of the Healehi, pressed Duke so hard in the 50 yards that he undoubtedly equaled the old world's record that the Hawaiian wonder smashed, and he also finished a good third in the century.

Wilhelm, who is a member of the Hui Nalu, won the 880 and the mile rather easily, beating the former holder, Vincent Genoves, who took second in both events. Wilhelm has a pretty stroke for distance work, a trudgeon with a hybrid kick that includes a modified leg-thrash. He will make still better time when he learns to catch cleaner with his right hand, and to keep closer to the line. Had Wilhelm lost a close race yesterday in the mile, it would have been because he zig-zagged across the course on his laps. Toward the end of the race he turned on No. 1 of the starting stage, and hit the No. 12 mark on the barge that marked the 110-yard line. Genoves made a plucky race of the mile, but he hadn't the speed to push his only rival, and clubmate, very hard.

Duke in Form

Duke Kahanamoku entered five events, including the relay, and won them all, which is in itself an enviable record. It was thought by some critics that if the champion took part in the 440, which was considered rather above his distance, he would kill his speed for the sprints, but as it turned out the quarter mile, which he won with ease, was just what he needed to get his water cleaving machinery working smoothly. Duke won by 35 yards, doing the distance in 5.37 4-5, which is a Hawaiian record.

DUKE KAHANAMOKU

The best previous performance was 6.19 3-5 made by Vincent Genoves, who was third yesterday.

The relay, which came last on the program, was one of the prettiest races of the day, and resulted in a very close finish between Duke for the Hui Nalu and George Cunha for the Healehi, in this second brush between the two over the 50-yard distance, Cunha took the water a trifle later than Duke, and held his own right to the finish, being beaten by a matter of a few feet.

Hui Nalu Winner

The Hui Nalu made a clean sweep of the day, from a club standpoint, taking 61 points to the Healehi 19, the Myrtles and Punahou taking one point each. Harris, of the Myrtles, took first place in both the swims for boys under 16, but these events are not part of the regular A. A. U. program, and do not count as points for the clubs.

There were 86 entries in the meet, and only the average scratches. This made big fields, and gave the spectators plenty of action. In the plunge for distance eleven men started, and as each was given three trials, it took more than three quarters of an hour to dispose of the one event. This was the only part of the afternoon that dragged in any way, and this, of course, was nobody's fault, but an unavoidable incident, which in itself served to show the widespread interest in water sports.

Some Bumping.

The 25-yard swim for ladies brought out three entries. Miss Stacker generously electing to stay out of it and allow one of the other swimmers to carry off a medal. Miss Helen Rosa won, and the fact that she finished second to Miss Stacker in the 50 yards shows that she was entitled to the victory, but still Miss Edith Kibling did not have half a chance in the 25 yards, as she was fouled twice by Miss Finella Miles. The former won second place, but had Miss Miles taken it she would undoubtedly have been disqualified.

There was a record breaking crowd, the A. A. U. officials who clamored for admission. The tickets were sold over and over again, and several hundred were turned away because there was not a square foot of standing room left on either pier. Withal, it was an orderly crowd, and excellent order was maintained. Sheriff Jarett had a large squad of police on hand, but their services were at no time necessary.

The results:
440-yards—D. P. Kahanamoku, 11. N.; Frederick Wilhelm, H. N.; Vincent Genoves, H. N. Time, 5 min. 37.4-5 sec.
25-yards, for boys under 16—W. W.

WALKER AND GREIG WIN

The driving and approaching and putting contests at the Oahu Country Club yesterday drew a fair sized entry from the golfing ranks, and the morning competitors were productive of excellent sport.

J. I. B. Greig won the driving, with an aggregate of 424 feet for three drives. This distance was made up hill, against the wind, and with practically no roll to the ball.

H. H. Walker won the approaching and putting contest. The shots were made 15 yards away from the pin on the third green, and Walker put three balls down in 9, his trials being 2, 3, and 4 strokes respectively.

The president's trophy will be played for next Saturday and Sunday, and there will be a bogey competition Sunday morning. Monday is the day of the Tom Morris competition.

Harris Jr., M.; Frank Cunha, H.; Harold Kruger, H. Time 12.25 sec.

25 yards, for ladies—Miss Helen Rosa, H. A.; Miss Edith Kibling, H. A.; Miss Finella Miles, H. A. Time, 17 sec.

50 yards—D. P. Kahanamoku, H. N.; George Cunha, H.; W. C. Hitchcock, P. Time, 24 seconds.

COAST SWIMMERS FEAR LOCAL TEAM

(By Latest Mail)

SAN FRANCISCO—Manager W. M. Coffman of the Pacific Coast championship swimming meet, announces that owing to the widespread interest and large number of entries that are being received it has been decided to extend the big affair and instead of taking place only on the afternoon of Friday, July Fourth, the meet will take in two days, and the finals of the shorter distances and relay races will be run off on the afternoon of Saturday, July 5th.

This is only fair to the swimmers and it is conducive to the best results so far as times go and will make a big difference to the contestants.

The Redondo team, with Cliff Bowes, the champion diver, Lady Langer, the long-distance speeder, and Henderson, the middle-distance man, together with a fast relay team already has it planned out to take first honors. With Langer and Bowes alone they are figuring on taking from twelve to twenty points, conceding Bowes at least second in the high and spring board diving contests and a possibility of winning these two events, while Langer is considered good for at least second in both the quarter and 880 and a good chance taking the initial place.

Of course, this is their "dope," but it sounds fairly well, for the strength of the Hawaiians is not as yet known. If the Duke is given any kind of support, there is more than a possibility that the islanders will sail away with the championship of the coast.

One of the features of the meet is expected to be the 440, for which Langer, Resleure of the Olympic Club and Johnson of the San Francisco Y. M. C. A. and others, the event should prove one of the best swimming races seen on this coast.

The latest entry is that from the Albatross Club of the Vendome baths of San Jose, which expects to enter a full team of championship aspirants. Mermals Interested.

Over fifteen mermals have signed up for the various contests for women, and some mighty good competition is expected, as they are all swimmers of good repute.

Dolly Mings of Redondo is getting into the best possible condition and is looking forward to the opportunity of defeating Mrs. Desch in the 50 and 440 yard races. Both these amateurs are considered as good as we have on the coast and should put up a keen exhibition.

Another entry for the women's title honor of the coast is that of Mrs. Soder of Santa Cruz, who won the cup on time from Nell Schmidt for swimming San Francisco bay last year. The Santa Cruz mermaid is particularly anxious to swim against the Alameda, Nell Schmidt, and has issued a challenge for any distance.

Withal things are coming along nicely with the big affair, for, with the diving platforms and springboards and turning platforms already in place and the entries coming in fast, there is nothing to be desired in the way of rapid progress.

FIGHT CARD PLANNED FOR SCHOFIELD JUNE 24

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)
SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, June 10.—Arrangements have been nearly completed for the big fight card to be offered at the Infantry Amusement Hall on the evening of the
